2026 Outlook on the Shipment by Product-Type Concerning Cameras and Related Goods

The Camera & Imaging Products Association (CIPA: President Go Tokura) has announced the 2026 outlook for shipments by product type for cameras and related products.

1. Track Record of Digital Camera Shipments in 2025

In 2025 (January to December cumulative), total shipments of digital cameras were 9,438,876 units (111.2% year-on-year). In the digital camera market, the trend of users selecting products based on their intended use and desired features continued, while the expansion of product offerings that meet such needs also appears to have been reflected in shipment results in 2025.

In the breakdown, total shipments of interchangeable-lens digital cameras reached 7,001,965 units (105.9% year-on-year), while mirrorless cameras, which account for the majority of this segment, maintained a consistent shipment level as products suitable for both photography and video recording.

Furthermore, total shipments of built-in lens digital cameras reached 2,436,911 units (129.6% year-on-year), demonstrating a growth rate that surpassed other types. Especially products with functional characteristics such as high-magnification zoom and video recording capabilities have seen steady demand, with consumers valuing the balance between portability, convenience, and image quality, and this trend appears to have been reflected in shipment results.

● Digital cameras: Shipments in 2025 (By type)

Unit: Quantity (units)

		2024	2025	YoY
